

THE MAGIC THREE

When writing, remember to use THREE examples in a series to make a point. This helps you, the author, to paint a picture for the reader. It also helps you to develop complex sentences.

EXAMPLE: In the woods, I would spend hours listening to the wind rustle the leaves, watching the birds soar, and smelling the sweet fragrance of the forest.

Look at these photographs and write a description using the Magic Three! Circle your three words.
